

IESO Engagement

From: David Reynolds
Sent: August 02, 2016 11:08 AM
To: IESO Engagement
Subject: Feedback: Multi-Distributor Customer Pay-for Performance (P4P) Program

To whom it may concern:

We have done audits and secured funding for numerous companies in Canada including Nestles, Maple Leaf, Molsons and Arla foods.

Here is our feedback regarding the proposed program.

Pros	Cons
Administered provincially rather than by LDC's: we have found too much variation in knowledge and resources for energy reduction amongst LDC's. This creates difficulties in developing company-wide multi-location plans.	Suggest offering the program to single facilities consuming a level of energy to that of multi-locations.
A set rate (.04 cents) although low based on other incentives offers a clear understanding of the incentive whereas incentives presented through LDC's are often complex	Companies should remain eligible for Retrofit and Process and Systems funding if for pilot and/or demonstration projects. By doing this will encourage innovation and introduction of new solutions for energy reduction
Four years is an excellent period of providing rebates based on ROI's of investment in energy saving processes, practices and technologies	Not a Con but a suggestion, centralize all SaveOnEnergy programs as they are not equally distributed and accessible across the province. It has been over 6 months since I last tried to connect with Guelph Hydro regarding a specific energy saving project.
Great first step in centralizing Ontario's energy saving incentives	Need program for more qualified energy auditors. Should work with a college or university to create a program for youth

Great first step. Well done.

Sincerely

David Reynolds, President

465 Gordon Street
Food Science Building, Rm 233
University of Guelph
Guelph, Ontario Canada
N1G 2W1
Website: www.inacservices.com