Subject: re: Test Activation

Hi,

In recent announcement that IESO will change how DR participants receive a notification of a test activation will take effect, GCP would like to discuss a couple of items.

- Details of the report name and parameters included should be given ahead of time, giving participant enough time to construct a working script.
- A sample of the reports should be given out so participants would know what to check on the report (i.e. based on previous IESO call notification, they would confirm bid amount and would at times have a different number).
- In terms of automation via API, IESO should set up a sandbox environment to test out participant's script if automation is successful (GCP suggests multiple trigger times).
- In case of notification failure, but a "Yes" stand by report was given, can this invalidate a test activation?
