

Nathaniel Bullard

Nathaniel Bullard is Head of Content at Bloomberg New Energy Finance. He is currently based in Washington DC, after positions in Hong Kong and San Francisco.

His expertise as an energy analyst includes solar power, new asset and corporate finance mechanisms for distributed technologies, the impact of new technologies on existing business models, and transitions to lower-carbon economies in developed and developing countries.

Nathaniel is a regular commentator for the sector and has been cited in The Economist, The New York Times, Forbes, Technology Review, and Scientific American, and appears regularly on Bloomberg Television.

Nathaniel has an MA in International Energy Policy and International Economics from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), and an AB, magna cum laude in the History of Art and Architecture from Harvard University. He is also a 2012 Aspen Institute First Mover Fellow.