Question

Stakeholder Comment

Do you believe there is a clear and common understanding of the intent and purpose of the draft market rule amendment?

In your view, is this market rule amendment in the interest of consumers with respect to prices?

In your view, is this market rule amendment in the interest of consumers with respect to the reliability of electricity service?

In your view, is this market rule amendment in the interest of consumers with respect to the quality of electricity service?

In your view, are there any adverse effects (not identified in a previous answer) that may be caused by implementing these proposed changes, either to consumers or market participants?

The Market rule changes will treat the payment for tests and for EOSC activation differently, while the costs associated with both curtailments is likely identical. Rodan has recommended that acceptance of $250/MWh for tests would be palatable but only if the IESO permits self-scheduling of tests, within reasonable parameters, in order to reduce costs for participants.
